The ability to give successful presentations is required in almost every field and is an essential part of professional development that allows students to obtain certain skills and qualifications for their future career prospects. The course in Presenting in English is designed to provide the students with an opportunity to enhance their knowledge of presentation parts and techniques, as well as to gain practical experience in presenting and public speaking.

In this course you will learn how to

- be an effective public speaker;
- structure your presentation content;
- introduce yourself and your topic in various speaking situations;
- adapt to different contexts, such as presenting to a small or a large number of people;
- prepare and manage your presentation notes;
- use appropriate English signpost language to guide the audience through the presentation;
- present data;
- use clear visual language and other useful presentation tools;
- prepare a strong ending to your presentation;
- deal with questions from the audience.

The course is delivered in English and involves a lot of discussion and group work.
